

Banquet and awards presentation highlight Charter Day

by Mike Kaika

The Charter Day program, held Saturday, April 7, was considered by many to be one of the best ever—with the highlight of the day the traditional banquet and awards presentation at "Ole Jim."

Jane Bassett Spilman, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Gallaudet College, was the guest speaker for the evening. She opened her presentation by assuring the audience that Interim President Jerry C. Lee is "competent and qualified" to lead the College until a new president is chosen.

"Dr. Lee is a hands-on president," said Spilman. He is familiar with the College's mission, has an excellent relationship with Congress and is determined to cut the fat out of Gallaudet's budget, she commented.

Spilman spoke of the Gallaudet Endowment Foundation which was established to gain increased financial support from the business sector. She said that Gallaudet's current endowment is about $2.7 million while other colleges of comparable size have about $26 million. She also noted that former Gallaudet President Edward C. Merrill Jr. has offered his help in this area.

She further announced that IBM has agreed to give Gallaudet College 36 personal computers thanks largely to the efforts of Lee, who has met with IBM officials in gaining that corporation's support for the College.

To have a well balanced Central Administration, Spilman announced that Robert Davila, vice-president of Pre-College Programs, and Jack R. Gannon, director of Alumni and Public Relations, have been appointed to the Central Administration. "We will now have three deaf, and three hearing persons on the team," Spilman said.

The Friday before Charter Day, Spilman surprised the Gallaudet College Alumni Association Board of Directors by taking up Gannon's offer to attend the Board meeting. After a short stay at the meeting, she went to a dinner with Dr. and Mrs. Boyce Williams and four Gallaudet students. "We had a wonderful evening and I asked the students what they wanted from college life and they said, 'more challenging courses and stricter academic requirements.'" The 120 persons at the banquet applauded, then gave Spilman a standing ovation at the conclusion of her presentation.

Gerald "Bummy" Burstein, president of the GCAA, announced that Spilman is the first Board of Trustees director to attend two consecutive GCAA Board meetings. "That shows she has a deep interest in and is a strong supporter of Gallaudet College," Burstein said. "In recognition of Mrs. Spilman's support, the GCAA Board of Directors has voted to make her an honorary member of the GCAA," said Burstein, who presented her with a GCAA membership card. The GCAA also gave Spilman a framed picture depicting the letters of the American alphabet in sign language.

A special presentation was made by Kenneth Rothschild, chairman of the Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet Stamp Committee. Rothschild, a 1968 graduate of Gallaudet, reflected on the history-making event in West Hartford, CT, last June when the Gallaudet stamp was formally dedicated. "By tradition," said Rothschild, "the very first album goes to the President of the Group explores idea of music program

With hopes that Gallaudet College may one day offer a music class or classes, a group of teachers and students met recently to discuss what might be done to achieve their goal.

Steve Lombardo, a professor in the English Department, stated at the April 4 meeting that "music in a formal way is lacking at Gallaudet. It's a gap in the curriculum. Students here should get more experience, more knowledge about music than now exists."

Lombardo said that possibly a program could be developed wherein students could learn music history and theory as well as take instrument instruction. In addition, he said he'd like to see a concert series established at Gallaudet, with visiting musicians giving performances.

"Music," he said before the meeting began, "is a big part of the American—and world—culture."

Students should have the opportunity to get whatever they can from music."

While Gallaudet offers no formal music program, students at MSSD are offered a music class through the Communications Department. "Auditory Training and Music Elements and Appreciation" focuses on topics such as amplification, the concept of sound and elements of composition. In addition, instrument instruction is offered after school through the Music Club.

Diane Hottendorf, a professor of Physical Education and Athletics, said there is student interest in music, noting that, "One clear demonstration of interest is the inclusion of talented deaf Gallaudet students in the last two and the present annual spring dance performance."

College, students hold luncheon to thank foundation

As a way of expressing thanks to a private foundation for its contributions to the College, an appreciation lunch was hosted March 27 by the College and Gallaudet students. Held in the Red Room of the Cafeteria, the luncheon was given for the Charlotte W. Newcombe Foundation, which over the last three years has given the College more than $125,000.

The foundation was created under the will of Charlotte W. Newcombe, a Philadelphia woman who made a fortune in excess of $34 million from stock in a Philadelphia drug company. Following her death in 1979, the scholarship foundation was chartered in Philadelphia and opened its administrative offices in Princeton, NJ, the following year.

Newcombe funds to Gallaudet have increased over the last three years, with the College receiving a $50,000 grant for the current academic year. The funds are divided among the Office of Experiential Programs Off Campus, Student Special Services and the Graduate School.

Student Special Services uses its allocation to serve multiply handicapped students in ways such as paying for interpreters, mobility training and the preparation of braille materials. The Graduate School uses most of its funds to pay for interpreters so that deaf graduate students can participate in consortium courses. The EPOC office uses its funds to pay for out-of-pocket costs for Gallaudet students participating in internships.

According to EPOC Director William Varrieur, the Newcombe funds are

Participants sought

Up to 50 people from Gallaudet are invited to be part of an "interactive audience" participating in a television program on hearing impairment. A panel consisting of Phyllis Diller, Nanette Fabray, David Tweedie and Latham Breunig will discuss the subject on "Morning Break" on Wednesday, May 2. The program is broadcast "live" at 10 a.m. Members of the audience would need to be at the WDVM-TV, Channel 9 (CBS) station at 40th & Brandywine, N.W. no later than 9:30 a.m. on May 2.

If you would like to participate (it's free and interpreted, of course!), call the Alumni and Public Relations Office at x5100 (voice) and x5104 (TDD).

The Gallaudet Dancers performed for the lunch crowd at "Ole Jim" April 10, giving a glimpse of numbers from the upcoming spring program, April 27-29. The dancers also appeared earlier this month at the Dance Exchange in "New Uses of Language in the Arts."

Convention features deafness session

The 62nd Annual Convention of the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) will be held April 23-27 at the Convention Center in Washington, D.C. In cooperation with the Council of Educators of the Deaf, a special strand on deafness will be offered Thursday, April 26 from 1:15 to 4:45 p.m. Coordinated by Robert Davila, vice president for MSSD and KDES, and Tracy L. Harris for CEC, the program topics and presenters are listed below.

"Social/Cultural Implications of Deafness—Assimilation vs. Normalization" will be presented by Mark Greenberg, a professor of psychology at the University of Washington. The topic, "Classroom Communication Strategies—Developing and Maintaining Oral/Aural Skills Within a Total Communication Program" will be presented by Gary Nix.

"Developing and Maintaining Sign Language Skills Within a Total Communication Program" will be presented by Carl Kirchner. "Current Research in Deafness" will be presented by Donald Moores, director of the Center for Studies in Education and Human Development at Gallaudet, while "Curriculum Modifications for Mainstream Programs" will be presented by Mary Campbell.

This cooperative effort was developed to introduce CEC members to issues facing educators of hearing impaired children.

For more information about the convention, call CEC headquarters at 620-3660.

Field initiated research

Applications are being invited for new Field-Initiated Research projects under the Research in Education of the Handicapped Program, the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services (Department of Education) recently announced.

The purpose of the program is to support research and related activities and conduct research, surveys or demonstrations relating to the education of handicapped children and youth.

Unlike the earlier Field-Initiated Research projects announced on Oct. 26, 1983, the new awards will support projects for a 60-month period. The appropriate study areas for proposed Field-Initiated Research projects are limited only by the purpose of the research program and the need for a 60-month period of support to accomplish the research objectives and activities.

Applications are due May 21. The Department of Education recommends that the narrative portion of the application not exceed 20 pages in length. It is estimated that approximately 10 awards will be made for new Field-Initiated Research projects under this program. The average amount of these awards will be approximately $50,000 for fiscal year 1984.

For further information, contact the Office of Sponsored Research. For application forms and program information packages, contact Eileen Lehman, Research Projects Branch, Office of Special Education Programs, U.S. Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, (Switzer Building, Room 3523), Washington, DC 20202, or call 732-1120.

United States." Because Rothschild felt the Gallaudet Museum would not be complete without the first album, he composed a letter to President Reagan asking if he would be willing to give his personalized album to the Museum. Rothschild presented the album to Spilman, who accepted it on behalf of the College.

Following this presentation, the Laurent Clerc Cultural Fund Awards were presented to four distinguished persons. Jess Smith, who received an honorary doctorate degree from Gallaudet in 1982, received the Laurent Clerc Award for outstanding social contributions by a deaf person.

Howard M. Quigley received the Alice Cogswell Award for valuable service in behalf of deaf people. Jerald Jordan, director of Admissions, received the Edward Miner Gallaudet Award which is presented to international or national leaders, deaf or hearing, working to promote the well-being of deaf people throughout the world.

The Amos Kendall Award, presented to a deaf person for notable excellence in a professional field not related to deafness, was awarded to Jean K. Cordano, a 1951 graduate of Gallaudet. She is a laboratory technician at a hospital in Wisconsin and supervises 24 other technicians, all of whom are hearing.

Other Charter Day activities included an auction in Chapel Hall. Don Pettingill and Eric Malzkahn served as auctioneers. Over $1,000 was raised from the auction, with proceeds going to the Gallaudet Museum account.

Also during the day, Richard Meisegeier, professor of Sociology, gave a seminar, "On Death and Dying."

Throughout the day, people attended the GCAA exhibition of Arts and Crafts and Photography which was on display all week in the Ely Center Art Gallery. Flo Crammatte announced the winners of the various categories during the banquet.

responsible for "major breakthroughs" in the upcoming placement of several Gallaudet students in internships. Pointing to placements with the accounting firm, Arthur Anderson and Company, MacNeil/Lehrer News Hour on PBS, the advertising firm of Weotzman, Dym and Associates as well as the possibility of placing the first deaf student on an Indian reservation in Arizona, Varieur said, "These students wouldn't be placed in those experiences without the money we received from the Newcombe Foundation. It just wouldn't be possible."

During the current funding year, more than 100 Gallaudet students will be placed in internships using Newcombe funds. Students qualify for Newcombe funds based on financial need and have worked in a wide variety of jobs—from freelance photographer to social worker to nutritional aide to office assistant.

To show their gratitude, approximately 40 students attended the recent appreciation lunch, during which time each described his or her internship/co-op experience and explained how Newcombe funds helped them. The students then presented Newcombe representatives a collage of pictures of Gallaudet students in their work settings.

Gallaudet College is an equal opportunity employer-education institution. Programs and services offered by Gallaudet College receive substantial financial support from the Department of Education.

College level, a support paper is now being circulated. Gallaudet employees and students are asked to sign to show their support for music offerings. Interested faculty and staff members should contact Diane Hottendorf or Steve Lombardo. Tina Wix is circulating the paper for Gallaudet students while Lisa McNiven is circulating the paper for students at the Northwest Campus.

Representatives from Gallaudet attend conference

Gallaudet College and Pre-College Programs were represented again this year at the program of the Annual Conference of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development (ASCD) in New York in mid-March. The conference theme was "1984: The Future is Now" and featured workshops, sessions, and exhibits for teachers, school administrators, teacher educators and school board members.

Philip Saif, director of Curriculum and Evaluation at KDES, presented a special session on "Computers: Their Place in Curriculum" in which he provided a model of how to use the computer in facilitating curriculum development in schools.

Nancy Fones, assistant principal for Curriculum at MSSD, received the ASCD Annual Dissertation Award in the area of supervision for her recently completed doctoral dissertation entitled "Personnel Evaluation Through Training." Fones also presented a summary of the dissertation to a special session.

Frank Duffty, assistant professor in the Department of Administration, participated as a member of two ongoing national ASCD committees, one on effective school supervisors and the other on supervision and leader behavior training.

David Martin, coordinator of the Undergraduate Teacher Preparation Program, was co-presenter of an "action laboratory" workshop on the topic, "Thinking and Problem Solving for Middle and High School Adolescents." Martin is also a member of the planning committee for a special national ASCD invitational conference on teaching thinking skills to be held in Wisconsin in May.

Peter Moran of the Office of Alumni and Public Relations set up and staffed a Gallaudet information booth in the exhibit area.

In addition, several other faculty members attended the sessions and exhibits at the conference.

Volunteers needed for Arts Festival

Next month some 750 disabled and nondisabled students and adults from across the country and abroad will arrive on campus. They're coming to participate in the National Very Special Arts Festival and will need assistance from the Gallaudet community.

Interpreters, mobility aides and other technical and personal assistants will be needed for the May 23-26 festival, an event of The National Committee, Arts With the Handicapped in commemoration of its tenth anniversary.

Visiting students and their adult companions will be staying at Gallaudet but will travel to the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts to attend workshops, performances and art exhibits featuring student works and appearances by a number of artists.

Volunteers are key to the festival's success and NCAH will provide orientation and training. Interested volunteers should call Maureen Gavaghan at NCAH, 332-6960 or 293-3980 (voice and TDD).

The Congressional All-Star team takes a break during the recent basketball game against students from MSSD. The students won the game by two points in overtime action.

Congressmen take on MSSD team

In a display of pure physical prowess, the boys and girls of the MSSD All-Star Basketball team rallied with only seconds on the clock to overpower the All-Stars of the 98th U.S. Congress, 55-53, in the first meeting of the two teams on Thursday, April 5.

Playing to a cheering crowd packed into the MSSD gym, the younger MSSD team fought a hard battle to out-finesse the more experienced (ie, older) congressmen.

Evenly and aggressively played through four eight-minute quarters, with the Eagles edging ahead by two points only to fall behind by the same, the game ended in a three-minute overtime. With one second left on the clock, the congressional team called a closed-door timeout for strategic planning led by David Bonior (D-MI).

But the maneuvering proved fruitless as a visibly weary Martin Sabo (D-MN) turned over the ball to MSSD's secret weapon, Pat O'Hara, former Bison roundballer and now an MSSD residence assistant.

"I'll never live that down," Sabo later commented.

The idea for the game originated with Bonior, who has spearheaded the drive to defeat the Pre-College budget cuts proposed in the 1985 federal budget.

A self-professed "sports fanatic," he thought the match-up would be a fun way to learn more about the school and introduce other members of Congress to MSSD. The game also raised $235.96 for the World Games for the Deaf.

After the game, players and spectators adjourned to MSSD's main building for sodas and snacks while students sought out their own congressmen.

With 31 students from Ohio, Michael Oxley (R-OH) was especially popular and he promised to mention the students when he saw the representatives from their own home districts.

The congressional roster included: Jim Bates (D-CA); Daniel Crane (R-IL); Bob Davis (R-MI); Tom Downey (D-NY); Jack Fields (R-TX); Leon Panetta (D-CA); Harley Staggers (D-WV); Bonior; Oxley and Sabo.

Playing for MSSD were: James Clacherty from Bowie, MD; Pat Crooks from Montgomery, AL; Annette Hansen from Iceland; Donald Harris from Washington, D.C.; Len Kelly, evaluation specialist with IDEC; Marianne Lopez from Hyattsville, MD; Angela McNalley from Baltimore, MD; Mark Nicholson, from Reading, MA; Christine Ohoro from Fitchburg, MA; Brenda Redmond from Washington, D.C.; Maria Ruiz from Annandale, VA; Stephanie Todd from Baltimore, MD; Michael Weinstock, MSSD residence assistant, and O'Hara. MSSD physical education intern Terry Leslie and residence assistant Jeff Bowden coached the team.

April 25 lecture set

Jack Ashley, Labor Member of Parliament for Stoke-on-Trent, England, will give a presentation entitled "A Personal Account of Hearing Loss" Wednesday, April 25 at 4:30 p.m. at Elstad Auditorium. Ashley is the only profoundly deaf man to serve in any legislature in the world. The lecture is open to everyone.

Office transformed into luncheon cafe

To benefit the Performing Arts Program at MSSD, the Office of Demographic Studies was transformed twice a week for the last three weeks into a cafe featuring a variety of culinary styles.

Tuesdays and Thursdays, two staffers volunteered their kitchen expertise and donated a luncheon for 20, served amid table linens and candlelight in the office of professor Michael Karchmer.

Susan King, coordinator of Data Processing, devised the idea, which brought in about $200.

Educator to speak

Jay Sommer, National Teacher of the Year and a member of the President's Commission on Excellence in Education, will address students in education programs, faculty in teacher education and all other interested individuals on Monday, April 23 at 7 p.m. in the Learning Center, Room LN 11. Sommer, a foreign language teacher in New York, will speak on "Priorities for Teachers: A Nation at Risk." The meeting is sponsored by the Gallaudet Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi—the honorary society in education—and anyone planning to attend should make a reservation by leaving a written note, telephone or TDD message for David Martin with Ida Gerald no later than Wednesday, April 18. The number is x5400.

Meeting to focus on varsity athletics

by Mike Kaika

"I'm not saying we are in a critical situation, but if this keeps up, we may well be facing that situation very soon." So said Joe Fritsch, men's athletic director, in discussing the men's athletic programs at Gallaudet.

Consider: When the call went out for football players last fall, only about 20 males showed for the first few practice sessions. Through some persuasion and pleading on the part of coaches, players and other concerned people, another 10 males donned uniforms and Gallaudet was then able to have a team.

The same problem occurred during basketball season. Seven males showed up for practice and more had to be recruited before the first game.

Most of the men's varsity athletic programs have been plagued by such problems for the past three years and unless some changes take place soon, it's a safe supposition that the future of men's athletics will be in jeopardy.

Football was suspended for one year in 1980 due to a shortage of players. However, more than 60 candidates showed up for practice at the beginning of the 1981 season. It was felt that the old adage, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," held some truth—until this past season.

Why the apparent apathy by male athletes at Gallaudet? Why do some varsity sports teams lack quantity and quality? What can be done to improve the situation? Fritsch would like to share his views on the matter in a brainstorming session with alumni. He also hopes to gather suggestions and ideas at that time.

The brainstorming session will be held Thursday, April 26 at 4:30 p.m. in "Ole Jim" during Happy Hour. All alumni in the Washington, D.C. area are encouraged to attend the meeting.

General campus announcements

- The College has added The Fidelity Group 403(b) plan to the tax sheltered annuity/investment program. Participation in the tax shelter program is open to all permanent staff and faculty members and to all extended temporary employees with more than one year of service. Anyone interested in this 403(b) program or any of the other available programs should contact Kayt Lewis in the Personnel Office for more information. She can be reached at x5113 (voice and TDD).

- A panel discussion on cochlear implants will be held Thursday, April 19 from 4 to 5:30 p.m. at the Ely Center auditorium. Sponsored by the Graduate School Colloquium Committee, the panel discussion will feature William McFarland, professor of Audiology, James Pickett, director of Sensory and Communication Research, and Margie Somers, program supervisor of Diagnostic Support Services.

- The bookstore is holding a raffle through April 19, with prizes to include a disc camera, tote bag, bicycle lock and a set of corning ware. Entry forms are available in the bookstore.

- ARA Food Services will hold a week-long promotion this week at campus dining facilities to raise money for the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. General contributions will be taken at each dining facility on campus, with special food items on sale at both "Ole Jim" and the Snack Bar.

Police win in volleyball, basketball

The campus police volleyball team recently challenged the MSSD women's team to a best of five volleyball match. After losing the first two games, the campus police team won the last three—winning the match. The game scores were: 8-15, 8-15, 15-3, 15-9 and 15-4. Members of the campus police team were: Ed Glenn, Herb Emerson, Bernie Holt, David Benjamin, Chatman Sieben and Bob Vizzini.

On March 4, the campus police men's basketball team challenged the Gallaudet College women's basketball team to a game, and won by a score of 74 to 52.

During the last 10 minutes of the game, the women pulled out all the stops, using eight players in an effort to make up a 40-point deficit.

The police team expects to challenge the students to more games.

World Games to hold camp at College

The United States Committee, World Games for the Deaf, will hold its eastern regional camp at Gallaudet from July 8-13. The central camp will be held at Southwest Missouri State University in Springfield, MO, from July 15-20 and the western regional camps will be held at San Diego University from Aug. 12-17.

The sports development camps will be open to hearing impaired athletes of both sexes, ages 14-19, and their coaches. The campus will strive to upgrade the skills of American hearing impaired athletes in the following Olympic sports: basketball, tennis, swimming, volleyball, wrestling, soccer and track and field.

In addition to the intensive training of hearing impaired athletes, the camps will concentrate on uniting the athletes coaches to upgrade their coaching knowledge, philosophy and techniques. The entire effort is designed to improve the quality and opportunities for America's hearing impaired athletes and their coaches.

For more information about the camps, contact Vicki White, camps director, 2100 Wadley #5, Midland, TX 79705. She can be reached by phone at 915-267-2511 (days) or 915-682-5730 (evenings).
